Program Associate, Minnesota Minority Education Partnership, Inc. (MMEP)

Amanda Ziebell-Finley is program associate of Minnesota Minority Education Partnership, Inc. (MMEP). Most recently, she acted as a consultant providing membership and events coordination for the Minnesota College Access Network (MCAN), an initiative of MMEP.

Prior to joining MMEP, Amanda served as senior admissions and financial aid counselor for the College of St. Catherine's in Saint Paul, Minn., and program associate for Admission Possible stationed in Roosevelt Senior High School in Minneapolis, Minn. Amanda brings extensive experience working with, and mentoring, low-income, first-generation, and immigrant students about college access options. She has also assisted families with completing financial aid, scholarship, and loan applications, and has educated first-generation families about the steps necessary in accessing higher education.

Volunteer experience includes being a member of the Immigration and Education Study Committee for the Citizens League, and acting as an HIV/AIDS Prevention Instructor for the American Red Cross.

Amanda graduated from Hamline University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science, and a proficiency certificate in Spanish. She also earned a Master of Arts, Organizational Leadership and an Ethics and Leadership certificate from the College of St. Catherine's.
